m Junction-Its Origin, and Growth-Great Railway Centre—Facilities for Intercommunica-tion—Establishment of B. Martin & Co., for the Manufacture of Agricultural Implements—The Eagle, Plough, Cultivator, Hay Cutter, &c.— Elliott's Golden Reaper, a California Invention -The Erection of Dwelling Houses-Great In. erease in the price of Land-A New Baptist Church-A New Name-Nonacavicus-Groton Proper -- Governor Boutwell. About thirty-five miles from Boston, and directly on line of the Boston and Fitchburg Railway, is

nated the thriving village of Groton Junction, as, convenience sake, it is called. Five years ago place had no existence. The ground which it occupies was either held for farming purposes, r covered by pine forests, more dreary to the eye, ven, than those of North Carolina, because not nggestively eloquent of "naval stores." But improvement, or change, came with the extension of railway facilities. At this point, it was found convenient to have meet the trains running on various lines of which the Fitchburg Railroad has been the fruittin mother. Here the Nashua and William of the control of the proposed and Low-line and the Boston of the Pothway book and Low-line and the Boston of Pothway book and Low-lines of the Control of Control o machine as that was on previous modes of operating among the wheat.

The "Junction Works" have been but a few weeks open, and they now employ some forty men, which number will be increased to about two hundred as soon as the buildings shall have been completed. A planing establishment is in course of erection, and also a foundry, where the company will do their own castings. It is, indeed, their intention to be as perfect within their own establishment, and as little dependent upon outsiders, as men well can be. When completed, the concern will be one of the best in New England, and from its facilities of communication with markets in all directions, cannot fail to do a great and profitable business. Freight cars load and unload at the very doors of the main building, and every possible convenience is provided for sure and rapid transport.

The company are erecting several large houses for the accommodation of their employes. There are alseady many dwellings at the "Junction," where four years since there were but two or three buildings, including the station house of the Fitchburg company, then the only railway that passed through a most dreary tract of country. Upwards of forty dwelling houses are in course of building, or are contracted for, and will be erected this season. That New England community must be poor indeed which does not provide for religious instruction very soon after it has commenced its existence. Accordingly, the "Junction" people are about to erect a "meeting-house," (I would call it "a church," only that Pope Brownson would excommunicate me for so doing.) in which religious services will be regularly performed. It will be in the hands of the Baptists, whose liberality in various ways is a well known matter of history, and whose ministers, like Cromwell's soldiers, are not in the habit of doing their work negligently. In the old times, the pillory, the whipping-post, the prison, and perhaps the frame-work of the gallows, were among the earliest things provided at the foundation of a New E ing into existence of this prosperous village, has had a capital effect on the fortunes of some individuals. Mr. Silas Nutting, a highly respectable Groton farmer, who owned a large part of the land in this vicinity, which would not have been thought a very advantageous bargain to the purchaser, had it been disposed of at ten dollars per acre, now finds no difficulty in selling it at rates ranging from seven hundred to one thousand dollars per acre. The probability is that the prices of land must soon be doubled, perhaps tripled, so rapid is the growth of the place. At the same time it would be the poorest sort of economy were the holders of land to demand very exorbitant rates for it. By selling reasonably they would quadruple the value of such portions as they should retain for future operations. There is, however, on the part of our New England farmers, an aversion to selling land, and a desire to add to their landed possessions, that sometimes works badly for more parties than one, and which is in the nature of a conservative principle in social matters in this quarter of the world.

After an examination of things at the Junction, so one, and which is in the nature of a conservative principle in social matters in this quarter of the world.

After an examination of things at the Junction, so far as my limited time would admit, and where every facility for acquiring the facts were politely afforded me by Mr. Martin, and by his partner, Mr. Lackey, I took a ride to the town of Groton proper, in company with Governor Boutwell, by whom I had been introduced to several gentlemen connected with business at the Junction. It seems that the people of the new village—future town, I presume—are desirous of having that most invaluable of things, a good name. The Junction, though expressive enough of the character of the railway business at the station, is utterly meaningless in all other respects. Governor Boutwell proposes the name of Nonacauicus, the Indian name of a stream that runs through their thirst two centuries ago. It is a mellithous appellation, and probably will be given to the place, should it come to have a corporate existence. At present it is recommended only to be the name of the Post Office here established.

Groton proper is about three and a half miles from the "Junction," and can be reached either "by the rail." or otherwise. The highway is rather a barren way, but is much of an improvement on the railroad. The land grows valuable as you get toward the centre of the town, where it is exceedingly rich and productive. I stopped at Mr. Boutwell's, where I had the satisfaction of seeing the previous day's New York Herald, the Governor being a regular reader of that distinguished journal, a fact that shows he knows where to look for the best sort of reading matter in the great department of journalism. Of Groton I shall write in my next, the present letter being quite long enough.

SOME OF THE SUMMER RETREATS IN CONNECTICUT. STAMFORD, Conn., April 24, 1853.

Mr. BENNET:-I notice in your paper of the 14th inst., an editorial, entitled-"Newport versus Cape May." With all due deserence to your opinion, may I not be allowed a few remarks on the subject of summer emigration from New York, in your columns. In your recommendations of various places suitable for summer recreations, you mention Rockaway, Cape May, Long Branch, Fairfield, and Glen Cove. Among all these Old Connecticut has but one favored place for summer residents, and that is Fairfield. Allow me to enggest that Stamford, Connecticut, has no equal in state for the lover of salling, fishing, and all other games sought by the lovers of country scenery and amusement. It was one of the first settled towns in the State of Connecticut. The Maine liquor law has lost caste here, and yet we have very few drunkards. For a country town I know of none better in point of situation, beauty, and for the affability of its inhabitants. Interest in the welfare of the place has no influence with me, for I own not one foot of property; but I wish to see all beautiful towns fully, conspicuously, represented in your columns. Fishing, fowling, riding, walking, and all country amusements, are here to be found. Anti-Maine Law. I not be allowed a few remarks on the subject of

A severe hall storm occurred in the vicinity of Halifax, N. C., on the 25th ult. Hail fell to the depth of eighteen inches, and did considerable damage.

Parke, an old man, about sixty years of age, has been tried before the Circuit Court of Mource county, Miss., for committing a rape upon a girl sixteen years of age, and then murdering her. The trial resulted in his convision, and he was sentenced to be hung on the 27th othe next month. Riggs, previously convicted before the same court, of the murder of Hunt, is to be hung on the same day.

The people of Glastenbury. Conn., will celebrate the

to be discharged. The Judge answered firmly that he had no power to discharge them, under the circumstances. They then enquired very innoceasity what the consequences would be if they were to burst the door of their room and make their escape. The Judge gravely threatened them with fine, imprisonment, &c., and they went back, with sorrowful hearts, to their apartment.

Mrs. Barrett has recovered from her late indisposition, and is announced to appear again at the Boston Museum. A fastal affray occurred at Cedar Grove, Caldwell township, about a fortnight ago, between two intoxicated men, John Brown and John Hassfam. They had a fight, in which the former was so much injured that he died in a week or two after. Dr. S. Personett, the Justice of Vernon, held an inquest, which resulted in a veriet in the died from injuries received from John Hasslam, on or about the 22d of April. Hasslam has been committed for trial.—Newark Advertiser, May 7.

MURDERS IN NEW ORLEANS.—We find the following in the New Orleans Crescent, of the 30th ult:—George Morgan, a free man of color, is under arrest in the Third district, on the charge of having stabbed and killed Edmund Wayne, another free man of color, on the 17th instant, near the convent in the lower part of the Third district.

A man named David Nolan was yesterday brought before the Recorder of the First district, to plead to the charge of having struck on the head with the butt of a whip, and killed, one Bernard Fitzpatrick, on the 25th instant. The affray occurred on the Lavee, near post 17. Fitzpatrick was taken to the Charity Hospital, where he died on Thursday night. A post mortem examination was held on the body of deceased, and it was found that he died from concussion of the brain. Nolan was remanded for examination.

Louis Canfield and Peter Harrison, employed on board the steamboat Bella Donna, were yesterday brought before the Recorder, on the charge of having killed a negroman, slave of Lewis W. Lyons, in the Parish of West Felicians, on the 19th instant. The weapon used was a stick of wood. The accused were admitted to ball in the sum of $6,000 each.

AN OLD OFFENDER CAGED.—On the 17th of last month.

AN OLD OFFENDER CAGED.—On the 17th of last month, a gentleman named Perosa, recently from Havans, was robbed at Walnut street what of a carpet bag containing a quantity of clothing valued at $100. Yesterday officers Goldey and Mirkley succeeded in securing the supposed thief at a house in Shippen street. The bag was found in his possession, and a portion of the contents were traced to parties who purchased them from the prisoner. This morning the thief had a hearing before Mayor Gilpin, to whom he gave the name of John Jones. The defendant finding himself completely cornered. acknowledged the theft, and wes committed for trial. Jones, at the time of the commission of this robberty, had just been released from Sing Sing, where he had been serving a term of three years under a conviction for larceny. His arrest so soon after starting upon a new career of crime may be considered a fortunate circumstance.—Philadelphia Bulletin, May 7.
